10 CHARACTERISTICS of a GOOD PROJECT MANAGER

Finding a good project manager is a rarity. If you know one or are lucky enough to work for one, work carefully to see these characteristics in their practice and character.

INSPIRE
Be both critical & supportive. Encourage people to do their best work.

FOSTER GOOD RELATIONS
Bring your team together. If people get along well at the start of the project, a good project manager is in good luck. Managers know when to take his/her, give feedback, and when to give everyone a pat on the back.

ANTICIPATE NEEDS
Be the first to recognize the needs of your team so that they don't get frustrated with you.

BE DRIVEN
Quality matters. A good project manager does what it takes to ensure that everyone's needs are met and everyone is happy.

ANTICIPATE PROBLEMS
Think in 30-60-90 days, 3 weeks into the future, and foresee problems that might "pop up" and then avoid or divert them.

MINIMIZE MEETINGS
Meetings are necessary, but they can be a waste of time. A good project manager will make sure that meetings are productive and that everyone is on the same page.

DELEGATE FIRMLY
Being a good delegator or helping you to be a better delegator are the keys to get the right task to the right person. Get people's strengths and allow them to grow by taking on more.

GOES IN WITH A PLAN
Good project managers will have a plan for every project, and they will stick to it. They will also have a backup plan in case something goes wrong.

FOCUS ON SOLUTIONS
Being a good problem solver is a key skill for a project manager. It's not about finding the problem, it's about finding the solution.

DON'T COMPLAIN
Use positive language to deal with tough situations and try to move forward. At all times. Take the past as a lesson that will improve future outcomes.

Learn how to apply your good project management skills to grow as a professional.
